DECENTRALIZE THE WEB

The TRON (TRX) coin is a cryptocurrency built on the TRON protocol. It's a means of credit sharing, payment, and storage. Everyone who owns TRON (TRX) coins fully owns all the data they create. The owners can control how this data is distributed to their audiences.

WHAT IS TRON BLOKCHAIN?

Tron is an open-source, decentralized, blockchain-based platform for developing and deploying dApps (decentralized applications). It was created by Justin Sun, founder and CEO of the TRON Foundation, a nonprofit organization based in Singapore. Tron was launched in 2017 and has since become one of the most popular blockchain platforms in the world.

Tron enables developers to create and deploy dApps that can be used to facilitate transactions, store data, and even host content. It aims to revolutionize the way people interact with digital content by providing a secure, censorship-resistant, trustless platform for users. It does this by providing users with a digital currency (TRX) and smart contracts that enable them to create and execute transactions on the blockchain. This eliminates the need for any third-party intermediaries or middlemen.

HOW DOES TRON WORKS?

TRON was initially an TRON based TRC-20 token. Today, it's a separate coin working in the Tron network. Everyone should learn that all data on the blockchain network is free. No financial or central authority controls it. Content creators gain TRX coins as rewards for posting content. They can also create their tokens on the TRX network, which can be further used within users' dApps on the TRON network. The main TRX token underpins newly created ones.

TRON runs on the proof-of-stake (PoS) consensus mechanism. The transactions within the network are validated by 27 super representatives who are chosen every six hours and earn a TRX coin as a reward for their work.
